

LANCASHIRE MCS WINTER TALKS 2018/19:

Wednesday 14th November, 19:30

Loch Sunart and the Isle of Gigha two talks from local speakers looking at the marine wildlife in contrasting post-glacial ‘landscapes’ off the West Coast of Scotland. Gordon Fletcher will look at Loch Sunart, and Barry Kaye, the waters around the Isle of Gigha.

Wednesday 12th December, 19:30

Dark and dull? Underwater wildlife photography in British waters members of Lancashire MCS share their underwater photography experiences.

Wednesday 13th February 2019, 19:30

Invisible world: Marine primary production plants in the world’s oceans are vital for keeping our planet inhabitable, and are also responsible for toxic ‘red tides’ and marine ‘dead zones’ – this talk by Barry Kaye (MCS Lancashire) will explore this hidden world of contradictions.

Wednesday 13th March 2019, 19:30

Slugs and coral two talks looking at British marine wildlife: Gordon Fletcher (MCS Lancashire) will look at some of the interesting and colourful nudibranchs (marine slugs), while Barry Kaye (MCS Lancashire) will look at some of the cnidarians (including corals) that are often their prey.

Meetings in the cinema at the Gregson Community Centre, Lancaster, LA1 3PY

Admission £3, everybody welcome!

The Marine Conservation Society is a UK based charity that champions marine wildlife protection, sustainable fisheries and clean seas and beaches.

For more information/updates or to contact us, please see our website:

lancashiremcs.org.uk